A 63-year-old man was admitted to our hospital complaining of chest pain. An electrocardiogram showed a wide complex tachycardia and echocardiography showed multiple ventricular aneurysms. His history of trauma was unclear. Acute coronary syndrome was suspected because of clinical conditions, and, therefore, emergency cardiac catheterization was performed. Coronary angiography showed the normal right coronary artery and left circumflex artery, but the right coronary artery originated from the left anterior descending artery, which was 20 to 30% stenotic. We performed aortic valve replacement and coronary artery bypass graft. Subsequently, atrial fibrillation resumed and the wide complex tachycardia persisted. From these results, we determined that the tachycardia was a type of the catecholaminergic polymorphic ventricular tachycardia (CVT). However, when we investigated the cause of CVT, we found an abnormally elevated level of the D-dimer in the serum.

Intense Street Art Gallery in New York Everywhere I looked at the second I walked into NYC I found more and more paintings... street paintings. Did the people who painted this on the street really know that they were creating art on the street? I guess it is ok. They are free and nobody will interfere with them. The whole thing was incredible. The highly imaginative and unique wall sculptures, the graffiti street art, were thoughtfully and beautifully integrated into the buildings and the city. The street art gallery is an example of how art and freedom can work together in a city. While I was there, I also found the great Bowery mural by Martin Ramirez. This is one of the 13 murals, out of a total of 27

Burden of food insecurity in Brazilian children: application of a numerical approach. Since it is measured by consumption, food intake may be an important indicator for food security. This study used a demographic and health survey (Pesquisa Nacional de Saúde-Brazil 2005) to estimate the prevalence of food insecurity among Brazilian children. We performed a cross-sectional analysis of data of 5151 children (10-17 years) living in the urban area of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. The estimated prevalence of food insecurity during the previous month was 16.2% (95% CI: 15.1%-17.3%). The prevalence was higher among children in the fifth and sixth quintiles of the distribution of household assets (p for trend=0.000). An inverse association was found between prevalence of food insecurity and socioeconomic class, higher school performance, monthly household income, presence of university-educated household member, and number of health service visits during the previous 12 months (p Q: How to check if file was a PNG or JPG before converting? I'm trying to check if a file is a.PNG or.JPG before converting it. I'm running my code on Windows. I used this line `pictureBox1.Image = Image.FromFile(web.PostedFile.InputStream);` But this is unworkable because it only accepts one file. I only want to upload a single file. But when uploading a file, my code automatically chooses which file to upload based on their extension. So this leads to my problem. Is there a way to know if the file uploaded is a.PNG or.JPG so that I can run my code accordingly? A: Using `Image.Exists()` you could check if the extension is right: `if (image.Exists() && image.GetExtension() == ".jpeg" || image.GetExtension() == ".png") { //do stuff }` Additionally
