A: I think the issue is that you're downloading files from a Windows 7 machine to a Windows 8.1 machine. Windows 8.1 does not allow you to download files to the Windows partition. You have to download to the C: drive (or any drive that is on your computer)

Q: Ubuntu 10.04 running wine (first time) i have installed ubuntu 10.04 LTS on my old pc from my university and it is the first time i run into wine. I have installed XAMPP on my pc with LAMP for windows clients. i also have installed wine and rtorrent. When i start rtorrent i see the statusbar with the process (and it doesn't work and i can't connect to the rtorrent server even if i tried to install a port scanner) How do i start rtorrent? Do i need to setup something in windows to work with wine? I would like to run a torrentclient in ubuntu 10.04

A: rtorrent is windows client - it won't run in Ubuntu, unless of course, you ran wine in it. Ubuntu will run wine using the winebrowser utility instead of the wine command-line tool. Check out these 2 links: Ubuntu 10.10 Wine Application Compatability Running Wine on Ubuntu To run rtorrent, you'd just run the.exe file from Windows. If you're using a non-gui client (Console or similar) you would also have to configure Wine.

A: Another solution would be to install the XAAMP LAMP stack. Run this from Windows at first, then to Ubuntu. If you're installing XAMPP for the first time, you'll need to download two things. The XAMPP package itself (you'll need to download the `xampp-linux-1.7.3.4-win32-installer.exe` for the package) and the database installer for the MySQL/MariaDB database (downloadable from MariaDB.org), in which you can add your database manually or create a new one. Note that the database installer is a `.tar.gz` file, not an `.rpm` or similar file as the XAMPP package is. For the database itself, edit the configuration file (`xampp/phpMyAdmin/config.inc.php`)
