This is a brief procedure that will prevent all of your programs from working in case of any problems. Restarting a computer will quit all of your programs, and as a side-effect, it will re-start all of your system files. To do this, follow these steps: - Restart your computer. - When the Windows logo first appears, hold down the Shift key on your keyboard while you press the power button. - When the last stage of the booting process completes, your computer will be restarted. - You will find that everything on your computer will be working normally. If you're having problems updating any programs on your computer, it's likely that your Internet connection has been disabled. To correct this, follow the instructions on your computer to reconfigure your network, then restart your computer. I was recently working on a thread about the Cascades, (as in the Cascade Mountain Range, the HUGE mountains/ranges in the West), and have just thought of something. I'm going to have it so that if the'mountains' are busy mining, then you'll get an image showing the mountains, but if they are free from mining, then you will see an image of the sea, with a few clouds. Any suggestions for a name to go into the file? The main part of it looks like this: Name: Cascade Mountains - Mining FREE Or Name: Cascade Mountains - Mining BUSY Anyway, I'd appreciate any feedback on the idea. Thanks everyone So we have news that we can now start building more of those beautiful little theme parks all around the world, right? And not the big ones with roller coasters and stuff, like Disneyland and Coasterland, but little theme parks for themed parks such as Volcano Island, Splash Mountain, Old Faithful, and Rainbow Mountain. Now if someone could make it so that there could be these little theme parks all over the world, that would really be nice. Hey, I was told that you need a 8.1 MB thm file. I did not know what thm meant, so I googled it and found this: I aa67ecbc25
