Is there any restriction on the order of e in H , such that $|G|$ is always divisible by the order of e ? A: This is a very nice question, but here's a different interpretation of it. Let M be a nonabelian simple group and let N be its smallest nontrivial normal subgroup. (For a fixed M , there are only finitely many possible candidates for such a group N , since $|M|$ is fixed and N must be contained in $M \times M$. There is a unique normal subgroup of N isomorphic to M .) Now every element of M commutes with its square, so if e is an element of N whose order divides the order of M , then Me must be a subgroup of N with index $|N|$:
