I need to update an object inside the state, as part of the current state, in a way that the component sees the change. I am using the const, in the state, to create a new object. If I do so I get the error message: Cannot read property 'list' of undefined state:

const [value, setValue] = React.useState([]); const { createNameValueInput, createNameValueList } = props; // createNameValueInput function function createNameValueInput(e) { e.preventDefault(); setValue(createList('Name', ['Value'])); } // createNameValueList function function createNameValueList(listName, collection) { const listValue = []; listName.forEach((element) => { listValue.push(collection[element]); }); return listValue; } // handleSubmit function function handleSubmit(e) { const { name b7e8fdf5c8
