What's New in the?

In another shocking development, PRAMCA has now taken a note of a Facebook post by a woman showing her sister's death certificate with her sister's photograph, along with the words, "That's my sister, she just died, she was attacked. I can't go to her funeral because I can't afford a headstone, and she didn't have any funeral clothes. We are asking everyone to donate money for our sister's headstone so that she can be properly buried," to which she got a lot of attention in the past 24 hours. Read the entire post below: However, the shocking part is that in the original post, she mentioned something else, "Her headstone is already up, I hope she is resting better now." The post gathered a lot of attention on Facebook, and the woman could not help but get angry. In her mood, she quoted the Facebook post, and added, "Oh my gosh. This is sick. She's only 24 years old. This is absolute bull." After a few exchanges, her sister deleted her sister's profile entirely. The Facebook post gained quite a lot of attention among the Tamil community. Then the woman also included a word, "I am an orphan," along with a picture of her older sister, who was abducted and raped. Though we cannot know the woman's true identity, based on her Facebook profile alone, she was a schoolteacher by profession. I am an orphan. I would like to be orphaned like my sister, I am asking everybody to help me for her headstone. She's only 24 years old. She is a school teacher from a good family. She went to this day to teach, she died to be burned in the next day. Please help me for her headstone, so that I can bury her in a nice grave. Since her family doesn't have money to do this, and also we were unable to do this, as her family has no information about her, just until now I was holding it until I die also. My family and brother don't even know that she was raped and killed. Please help me to do something. Kaloji Mai, who works as a school teacher in Tamil Nadu, was raped and murdered after getting into a quarrel with her husband.
