Edit Images/ Photos Photoshop Elements is made to help you edit and design photos. Its many pre-made filters can be used to enhance the appearance of your images. The options in the filters panel allow you to add a multitude of characteristics to your photo. •Blur: adds a creative and artistic effect to the picture. Blur makes your images look more artistic. This method of blurring is known as radial Blur. It allows you to choose from three different patterns including a radial pattern. Some of the other settings that can be used for blurring include Gaussian Blur, Laplacian Blur, Motion Blur, Radial Blur, Simplify, and Soften. •Brightness: is a tool that decreases or increases the overall brightness of an image. •Contrast: determines the contrast between the light areas and dark areas of your image. •Curves: is the best tool for creating a non-linear set of curves for changing the contrast. The graphical interface of the tool allows you to create curves which are nearly limitless in range. •Levels: is a powerful tool that can be used to increase or decrease the brightness or contrast of an image. You can also use this tool to adjust the colors, to lighten or darken an image. •Luminance: creates a monochrome picture from an existing image. The luminance tool automatically computes the color of the image, and then creates a grayscale copy from it. This result can be enhanced or altered by changing the levels, curves and/or brightness and contrast tools. Luminance is a favorite tool among photographers as well as web designers. •Merge Down: combines similar images together to save time and storage space. •Sharpness: improves the resolution of the image. Sharpness increases the sharpness of the details in an image. •Shadow/Highlight: lowers the shadows and raises the highlights of the image. •Sepia: turn a picture into a vintage looking picture. The sepia tone is a way to turn a color image into a monochrome image. Sepia is a creative way to change your image into a different style. •Sharpen: raises the resolution of an image. •Smooth: softens wrinkles or reduces skin blemishes on an image. It is a great tool to soften objects like a face or a flower 05a79ccecff

Q: How to safely dispose of unused SubSonic objects and ConnectionPool instances? I need to ensure that resources are properly cleaned up in SubSonic. I have the following setup: I have created a Product as follows: Product product = new Product(); product.Title = this.Title; Then I have used it in an Action as follows: var Product = SubSonic.DocumentType.Product; var r = db.Products.SingleOrDefault(p => p.Title == this.Title); var a = r.ActionName; I'm not sure where to dispose of the Product object and the ConnectionPool instance. Should I call the Dispose method on the product, on the actions, or on the db context? I find the SubSonic source to be very non-sensible in this respect. How should I do this correctly? A: You'll get the most flexibility if you dispose of them all where they're created. As for a sample, let's say that you have code like this void Main() { using(SubSonic.Connection conn = new SubSonic.Connection("foo")) { using(SubSonic.DocumentType.Product product = new SubSonic.DocumentType.Product() { product.Title = "Test Product"; using(SubSonic.Action action = new SubSonic.Action(product, "Test Action")) { action.DisplayName = "Test Action"; //do stuff } } } } You should probably do something like void Main() { using(SubSonic.Connection conn = new SubSonic.Connection("foo")) using(SubSonic.DocumentType.Product product = new SubSonic.DocumentType.Product())

Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an improvement in a water faucet which provides a hot water supply by pressing water supplied from a water supply source such as a water source into a hot water spout. 2. Description of the Prior Art There have been proposed various types of water faucets which supply hot water by pressing water supplied from water supply source into a hot water spout. FIG. 10 shows a typical example of such conventional water faucets. As shown in FIG. 10, the conventional water faucet has a main body housing 101 and a rotary valve 102 mounted in the main body housing 101. The main body housing 101 has a water inlet 101a. There is formed an outlet passage 101b in the main body housing 101. Through the outlet passage 101b, water supplied from a water source (not shown) is supplied to the rotary valve 102. The rotary valve 102 is connected at one end of a hot water supply pipe 103. The rotary valve 102 has a valve plug 102a which is pressed against the outlet passage 101b by a presser plate 104 fixed in the main body housing 101. The presser plate 104 has a seat portion 104a having a large diameter which surrounds the valve plug 102a. The presser plate 104 is biased by a compression spring 105 so that the valve plug 102a is in contact with the seat portion 104a of the presser plate 104. As shown in FIG. 11, the rotary valve 102 has a valve cover 106 which is mounted on an upper surface of the valve plug 102a. The valve cover 106 has a valve head 106a which is exposed to the outlet passage 101b of the main body housing 101. On a lower surface of the valve head 106a there is formed a cutout 106b of a diameter larger than that of the valve head 106a. The cutout 106b has an axis parallel to that of the valve head 106a, and is oblique
